The above drawing by Trost & Trost shows how the public must pass the Liberty Bell Tuesday afternoon to see it. All persons residing north of the tracks must come down Kansas street to the G. H. depot and march west on the north side of the bell to Stanton, then north on Stanton and disperse. Those residing south of the track must march north on Kansas to the G. H. depot, turn west on the south side of the bell to Stanton and then disperse south on Stauton.

Police will keep the district north of Texas street, west of Campbell, east of Oregon and south of Wyoming streets clear of autos during the time the bell is in El Paso. This district will either be toped off or will be policed by the troops and police to prevent automobiles interfering with the crowds wishing to view the bell.
